

ABSTRACT

A hybrid vehicle capable of avoiding that a driver declares that a battery is defective when a battery for auxiliary traveling does not yet require maintenance. When the charged amount of the battery is lower than a specified value, operating conditions for idle/stop control are changed without any optical display such as indications by lamp so that the idle/stop control is not performed frequently.